Joe's Moskalev SAM-9 Strela

In the November issue of Model Aviation in the Free flight Scale section, there is mention of this model of a 1937 Russian experimental plane. Looked very interesting so I decided to build my electric powered version from Depron. Was able to locate 3-view photos so I designed mine from those photos.

It is almost 20" long with a 18" wingspan. It is powered by a Hacker A10-9L with a 8x4 prop and a 2S450 lipo. AUW is 6.4 ozs. It is awaiting it's maiden flight, hopefully at the New Years Day Fly-In at the church. I did check the CG by taking it outside and doing a glide test into the snow. That went well.
