Indoor Flying

Plenty of activity happening at the indoor flying nights every Thursday at the church in Madison. I have received some photos from attendees and they make me wish I was attending! Lots of experimental aircraft taking to the air. Some successful and some less so! But from what I am hearing, they are having a lot of fun!

Outdoor Flying

Bob At KVMA in February.

Bob C and I attended the KVMA March Fly-In on March 9. A cool and breezy day. I did manage some flights with three different aircraft. No snow but quite wet!

I also made it to the KVMA field one other time in March for a bit of flying. Bit cool but not a bad day for some flying.

Any Projects! - What are you building?

If you are involved in building something, let me know and send a few photos so I will have something for the newsletter other than my own projects.

Just finished my latest project, a replacement Polaris as my original one is showing its wear and tear after 11 years and 180 flights.

My next project is a small balsa powered glider kit that just arrived, a Micro Sinbad. It was featured in the March Model Aviation.
